Abstract

To use photography to better understand the following concerning the "guests" at a church-based soup kitchen in Indianapolis. One year was spent exploring how to use researcher-produced photos of soup kitchen "guests": to meet their social/emotional/physical needs to give back or implement feelings of trust and reciprocity to improve relations between IUPUI, the church, and the surrounding urban community