PROCREATION, POWER, AND PERSONAL AUTONOMY: FEMINIST REFLECTIONS

ANNE DONCHIN

Dedication: for my children through whom I’ve come to experience the gratifying continuum that joins procreation, child-rearing and adult companionship.

Laura Purdy: Editor’s Notes

INTRODUCTION: Coming to Terms with My Mother

Chapter 1: The Pronatalist Imperative: Medicine, Money, and Markets

The Burgeoning Baby Business
The Media’s Misleading Message
The Present State of the Art
The Fertility Industry
Emergence of an Expert Elite
The Pronatalist Imperative
Creating a Social Climate for Infertility Intervention
Public debate

Chapter 2: Policy, Politics in Assisted Reproduction: Regulatory Responses

Framing Debate: British Controversy
Reflections on the British Legislative Debate
The Market Model of Choice: The U.S. Approach
Beyond Britain and the United States: Transnational Issues
Toward Reproductive Justice

Chapter 3: Dissenting Voices

Feminist Debates: The Early Years
Second Generation Feminist Critiques
Responses to the Radical Perspective
Reclaiming Women’s Agency
Revaluing Maternity
Patterns of Social Stratification
Reappraising Power Relations
Reclaiming Agency
Reconnecting Theory and Practice

Chapter 4: Recasting Reproductive Freedom: Individual, Group, and Universal Perspectives

Gender Equality: A Problematic Concept
Women’s Rights: The Lingering Effects of Abstract Individualism
Gender equality: A problematic concept
Feminist Responses to Embedded Inequalities
Challenges to the Language of the Reproductive Rights Movement
The Libertarian Defense of Reproductive Freedom
Rethinking Reproductive Rights and Wrongs
At the Margins of Individual Choice
Conclusion

Chapter 5: De-Naturalized Reproduction: Between Facts and Artifacts

Feminists Rethink the “Natural”
Appeals to Nature as Normalizing Strategy
The Medicalization of Artificial Insemination
Medicalizing Donor Insemination: Social Issues
Institutionalization: The French Experience
Beyond Donor Insemination

Chapter 6: With Child: The Meeting of Nature and Culture

How the Technological Imperative Transforms Pregnancy
Legal Issues
Selecting the Sex of Offspring
Abortion Through a Feminist Lens
Pregnancy Beyond “The Bare Facts”

Chapter 7: Symbolic Struggles and Personal Identity: Desiring Children

How Gender Influences the Desire for a Child
The Diversity of Women’s Desires for Children: Voluntarist Accounts
Feminist Responses to the Fertility Industry
Reconfiguring Desire: Psychodynamic Accounts
Toward a Pluralistic Perspective
Conclusion
Appended Material

Chapter 8: Family Politics and Personal Autonomy: At the Junction of Biological and Social Connection

Changing Family Norms
Family Burdens and the New Genetics
How Genetic Decision-making Affects Significant Social Relationships
Authority Over Testing Their Children
Family Tensions Generated by External Conditions
Effects of Genetic Information on One’s Self-Conception
How a Relational Conception Illumines Family Conflict
How Access to Knowledge Bearing on Future Plans and Conceptions of Relations Affects Autonomy
Eugenic Considerations
Conclusion

Chapter 9: Are Women a Social Group?

The Problem: Do Women Constitute a Social Group?
Seeking Solutions/Specifying Commonalities
Reconsidering the Claim to Speak for All Women
Concluding Remarks
Chapter 10: Coming to Terms with Contemporary Scholarship on Sex and Gender: Prospects for Social and Political Action

Prospects for Collective Feminist Action
Bonds, Not Boundaries

Laura Purdy, Selected Bibliography